Select a clean, smooth black pod, not one which appears decayed or eaten by insects, and have good deodorized spirit, which s the only kind for making extracts. Lemon and orange extract made in the same way, by steeping thin, outer parings of the peel in alcohol, will give a more delicate flavor than most ready made preparations.

New Arrangement of Portieres.

A delightful innovation in the arrange-ment of portieres is to hang over one looped curtain a short projecting lambre quin of the same material, to give the effect of a deep recess. This is particu-larly pretity for rooms that open one into another, where one seems to have a long perspective of fascinating color. In rooms that have a deep frieze and dado the space between these two is now often covered with breadths of velvet slightly caught up at the top here and there, throwing the whole into small diagonal folds.

It is said that bottles will never break when packed in trunks if they are fortified by two or three ordinary rubber bands around them.

This enamel is a most useful aid to the woman who enjoys house decorating. A kitchen chair, for instance, may be made a thing of beauty, if it happens to be of a quaint or graceful shape, with a can of enamel a yard or two of gilt and the same of Safety Pins. Safety pins are now made so that they work both ways. The shield or brace is attached at the centre, and either end of the pin springs out at a pinch. These Women Feel Deeply.

Not long before she died. Lucy Stone said, in an address to the young girls of Mount Holyoke College: "I never can think now, although I am an old woman and that time is long past, of the epithets and abuse that were once heaped upon my head, and by good and kindly men, without growing red to the roots of my hair." And, as she spoke, the scarlet color flamed up over her gentle, faded face, and a distressed thony remarks, not without a pardonable and dry it before browning it.
